Screenshot : Breitbart Ever since the shutdown, President Trump has claimed he's sorry for the impacts it has on everyone. However, Trump may be the only one who feels that way, as a new poll revealed that only 17 percent of Americans actually blame Trump for the partial government shutdown. The latest YouGov/Economist poll released on Sunday showed that 41 percent of Americans do not hold the president responsible for the shutdown, while 13 percent said they're somewhat to very sorry. To put that number into perspective, only 7 percent of respondents said they "fully" blame Trump for the shutdown, while only 4 percent blamed him "a little bit." Just 17 percent of Americans overall said they think Trump is entirely to somewhat responsible for the government shutdown. Roughly one-quarter of Americans said they've lost their paycheck due to the closure of national parks. The new YouGov/Economist poll showed that the number of Americans who said they've experienced financial hardship because of the shutdown has doubled since last week, to almost one-quarter of Americans. A majority of Americans have said that it's their idea to work with Democrats to resolve the deadlock, while only 22 percent of respondents said they believe Trump should just "give in to the Democrats."Q: Is this really a 64KB limit? What's New in the Adobe Photoshop 2021?

There are many more Photoshop tools, but these are just a few of the most popular ones.Editor's Note: This story was updated on Sept. 26 at 11 a.m. After a man said he was sexually assaulted while he was at the University of Buffalo, professor Richard Howard wrote an op-ed piece for The Enterprise arguing that students "should be prepared to test for rape and sexual assault". In the article, Howard writes about a friend of his who said he was raped last spring while studying abroad in France. Howard later said it was his friend who had asked the University of Buffalo to look into the sexual assault. "In the spring of this year, I received a call from a young woman (I'll call her "Jane" for ease of reference) who wanted to talk about her grades and how they were going," Howard wrote. "At the end of our conversation, she asked me what I thought about a semester abroad in France and if I had ever been abroad. I told her I was and she asked about my trip and whether or not I had been raped. I replied I had been." Howard said his friend told him she was raped in Paris last spring, and he wouldn't have to pay for tuition because of it. "I didn't know what to say," Howard wrote. "So I told her how sorry I was to hear her story. She thanked me and said, 'I don't blame you, if I had been alone in a foreign city, I probably would have gotten raped.' "I said, 'I'm sorry to hear that,' and that was the end of the conversation." Howard said he spoke with Jane and her parents about it and wrote an op-ed piece because he feels it's his duty to speak out. "I didn't like saying it to my friend, but that's because I'm not sure she needs to hear that someone she admires has been raped in a foreign country," Howard wrote. "I was not sure what she would say in response. You see, she is a student who has a high GPA, so she has value. She is someone who has had to grow up in light of this experience. It will profoundly influence her in the future. "Also, she is a person who is respected and has friends at the
