FILE PHOTO: A general view of the exterior of Aramco headquarters in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia February 27, 2017. REUTERS/Hamad I Mohammed/File Photo Aramco's boss Amin Nasser told the financial conference in Riyadh the company was aiming to list this year. Aramco has the world's largest proven oil reserves. The world's biggest oil company is set to be renamed from Saudi Aramco once its listing is finalized, he said, and the board of the company, known as Aramco, has set a long-term policy of listing as much as possible of its reserves. "The target for Aramco is to stay on the market as much as possible," Nasser told investors and financial analysts at the conference. Aramco has previously floated only 1.1 percent of its shares in a private placement. Nasser said that after initial public offering of Aramco shares, which is expected to raise between $100 and $120 billion, a dedicated fund will be set up for listing proceeds. The fund would be at least $1 trillion and the company will work closely with the market regulator to list the remaining equity between 8 and 12 percent of its total shares, Nasser said. The fund could come from the proceeds of the private placement of Aramco and other sources, said Nasser, declining to give further details. Aramco plans to start paring down its operations, Nasser said, as it transitions to a more market-driven role, and will shed non-core activities and
