The WannaCry ransomware, also known as Wannacry, which is capable of encrypting a computer's files and demanding a ransom to decrypt it, entered the horizon only last week, and even now it has not caused any tangible impact except for infecting some home computers, however, the cybercriminals are already ready to open the floodgates and make this infection more pervasive. It has been detected that cybercriminals are targeting more than 10,000 SMB domains and demanding users to pay for the decryption of their files through emails. The email used by hackers to lure victims into opening malicious attachments and download the ransomware has been detected sending to addresses like "representative of Mpisystems.pl", "Microsoft Office Team" and "Microsoft Security Center Team". In most cases, the cybercriminals are using Microsoft Word, Excel and other popular programs and email clients to deliver the malicious attachments. The malicious file dropped by the cybercriminals is named "temaproz.exe" and has the ability to encrypt the files on the infected computer. The malware uses advanced decryption techniques (Lucky Thirteen) to break down the encryption on the encrypted files and uses it to make ransom demand. We have found few SMB hosts, which are naturally vulnerable and are being targeted by hackers. In our current scans, we have detected more than 10,000 SMB hosts that have been compromised by the hackers and they are suffering from infection and are serving the malicious files. If you receive this kind of emails, please don't open the attachments and always ignore suspicious emails. Always remember that a single click can put your computer at risk.

Please always remain vigilant and exercise caution. Q: set id to element in create method Is it possible in grails create or save method to give an element an id using params map? This is the code I wrote `def save = { def entity = new Entity() entity.properties = [:id: params.id] entity.save() }` and in the Java class I need to do this `params.put("id", id)` The code above does not work. A: The annotation for id or Integer values
