Italians revel in their team's first World Cup victory since 2006 The Giallorossi football team managed to celebrate their first victory in a World Cup qualifier in nine years, and fans were happy to let their emotions show even though the conditions were less than ideal: heavy rain, a light breeze and mud. The match that saw the three points for the Azzurri came after Leonardo Bonucci's low cross was slipped in by Andrea Belotti in the 89th minute. The goal was scored by Andrea Barzagli, who after being chosen as the Man of the Match for his performances in the qualifying campaign, celebrated the victory like few others. "It was a duel of men, a physical duel of men," the 40-year-old told reporters in the locker room. "We are one of the few teams that really produces a lot of resistance, and we managed to get through that."

We'll let the other national teams have fun now." Barzagli, widely considered one of the best defenders in the world, was also an excellent header.

"Today we won in a special way," he said. "We all managed to perform better than in recent weeks." "We had a lot of fun and we'll leave the party here."

For Leo Bonucci, who plays in the central defence, it was a special victory. "It's our first point in nine years," he said.

"We came in with a positive attitude and didn't think about the weather." 6d1f23a050
