Teks Pidato Bahasa Arab Tentang Akhlak Nabi Saw 2016284.Q: jsf: dynamically created input I am trying to create a dynamic form. Where I have two tables, searchform and searchresults. The two tables are shown in a map and if a user clicks on a button, he should see the inputs of both tables in a form. The searchform table has a bunch of inputs with possible values and the search results table has many inputs that are unique (primary key, foreign key etc.) I am having a lot of problems implementing this. So far this is the only code I have: public class SearchFormPanel extends javax.faces.component.UIComponentBase { private MyForm myForm = new MyForm(); public int resultsFound; public String getMessage() { FacesMessage message = new FacesMessage(FacesMessage.SEVERITY_INFO, "No results", "Empty Search!"); FacesContext.getCurrentInstance().addMessage(null, message); return (message.getCode() == null? "No results" : "Empty Search!"); } public void addRow(Object obj) { myForm.addRow(); } public String render() { myForm.render(); return null; } public void save() { //omitted } public boolean isRendered() { return myForm.isRendered(); } public void removeRow() { myForm.removeRow(); } public void reset() { myForm.reset(); } public void setData() { myForm.setData(); } public Object getData() { return myForm.getData(); } public int getRowCount() { return myForm.getRowCount(); } public void removeData() { myForm.removeData(); } public void setRowCount(int count) { myForm.setRowCount(count); } public void setData
